GREAT DAY FOR WEDDINGS

Six Couples Joined in the Bonds of Matrimony.

All of the Parties Well Known in Fashionable Society Circles—Entertainment at the Alibi Club.

Chris Church, Georgetown, was the scene last night of one of the most brilliant nuptial events that has transpired in Washington within the year. The bride was Miss Frances Caroline Wheatley, daughter of Mr. S. E. Wheatley, formerly Commissioner of the District, and the groom, Lieut. Thomas S. Follett, United States Marine Corps, who were united in the presence of an assembly made up of old residential families of Washington and Georgetown, together with many representatives of official circles and guests from out of town.

The wedded choir of Christ Church received the bride and her attendants at the entrance and escorted them to the chancel, chanting as they went the wedding march from Lohengrin. Succeeding them were the ushers—Capt. Paul St. Clair Murphy, U.S.A.; Capt. Philip M. Bannon, U.S. M.C.; Assistant Engineer Walter Ball, U.S.N.; Assistant Engineer John P. Ryan, U.S.N.; Ensign C. E. Gilpin, U.S.N.; Ensign Leon S. Thompson, U.S.N.; Theobald James Josephine Heiliger, to Mr. John W. Borden, whose bride was the bridegroom's sister over the aisle, with infant infants, trimmed with Gretchen bands of blue-satin ribbon. Their gowns were white Japanese chrysanthemums tied with blue ribbons. The Misses Mary and Laura Wheatley, sisters of the bride, attended her as maidens of honor. Their gowns of white muslin do over white satin were made also with infant bodies and Gretchen bands, and their chrysanthemum bouquets were tied with white satin ribbon.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was exquisitely attired in white satin, the skirt seen outlined with tiny ruffles of chiffon. The low bodice was draped with Irish point, and her toilet veil was fastened with a diamond heart and orange blossom sprays. The wedding flowers were white roses and violets, the latter blossoms being the bride's tribute to the naval line. The bridal procession was received at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. Edward W. Marshall, of Philadelphia, who in his remarks which included a short oration, was saluted by Rev. Alfred Scott Stott.

The church service was followed by a reception at the Wheatley residence to the wedding party and intimate friends, after which Lieut. Borden left with his bride for a honeymoon trip, before proceeding to its post at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, where they will reside.

One of the notable nuptial events of yesterday was the marriage of Miss Mayday Louis Walker, the daughter of Capt. and Mrs. W. H. Walker, to Mr. William Britton, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock at the Calvary Baptist Church. The bridal ceremony, followed by a large reception, was given at the Murray Hill Hotel. Miss Howard D. Hitchcock, the bride's mother, received in a violet velvet gown with white satin. She carried a bouquet of violets. The bride is a daughter of the late Commander Roswell H. Hitchcock, U. S. N., and granddaughter of the late Rockwell D. Hitchcock, for many years president of the Union Theological Seminary.

The Rev. David H. Greer, the rector, performed the ceremony, and the bride was dressed by her uncle, Bradford Hitchcock. She was attired in a white satin gown, simply made, with full veil caught with a bouquet of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was composed of blue of the valley.

Miss Julie Butler, of Philadelphia, wore a heavy silver-gray silk, with the foot of the skirt cuffed, and lace blouse, waist over the silk, with yoke and girdle arranged in two shades of pink velvet. She carried a big bunch of pink roses. There were no big bunches.

George Dyer attended the bridegroom as best man, and William Harriman, Charles Simonds, David Bain, Jr., William A. Green, Alexander Shirton, of Washington, and Anthony Dyer were the ushers.

After the church ceremony an elaborate bridal breakfast was served, and a large reception was given at the Murray Hill Hotel. Miss Howard D. Hitchcock, the bride's mother, received in a violet velvet gown with white satin. She carried a bouquet of violets. The bride is a daughter of the late Commander Roswell H. Hitchcock, U. S. N., and granddaughter of the late Rockwell D. Hitchcock, for many years president of the Union Theological Seminary.

Mr. Charles Coggin, in his presentation of "The Royal Box" at the Columbia Theater, in Washington, November 22, will be supported by an unusually strong company, and will include three of the most celebrated women on the American stage—Mrs. Louise Tiegs, Mrs. Grace Felt, and Grace Felt, the wife of Commander Marix, of the United States Navy, and Miss Edith Klein. These ladies are not only remarkable for their personal charms, but are also artists of superlative ability, a combination somewhat rare. Mr. Coggin's support will also include his beautiful daughter, Gertrude, a fascinating young lady, eighteen years of age, who is said to have inherited the great dramatic talent of her eminent father. In this play Mr. Coggin impersonates the character of a great actor, and in one of the scenes, which is a scene within a scene, he and his daughter will appear as Romeo and Juliet. This feature will add additional interest to a play which, it is said, proves one of the most fascinating that has been produced in America for many years.

His scheme is to go to a well-kept boarding-house and on representation that he is a transient customer and will remain in town but a few days, rent a room for the shortest possible time. He then carefully watches the movements of the other roomers, and when any considerable number of them are out, by means of disguised voices, he enters their quarters and carries off their valuable belongings, dispose of them without being discovered. These he pawn and immediately recovers the house and finds lodgings elsewhere.

For some time Duncan has been operating this scheme with success. The detectives got trace of him yesterday and learned that he had moved from Messina's boarding-house, on Thirteenth street, to one kept by Mrs. Grant, on New York avenue, where he was arrested. A large number of the stolen articles were taken by the police.

The wedding gifts, which are very numerous and beautiful, include house No. 1223 Caroline street, which was presented by the groom's parents, Col. and Mrs. Britton, and where the young couple will reside on their return.

The Church of the Epiphany was filled last evening with the friends of Mrs. Ross Estelle Fowler, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Fowler, and Mr. Joseph T. K. Price of Baltimore, who were united in marriage at 8 o'clock. Rev. Dr. McFadden officiated. The bride was Miss George A. and Frederick Philt, brothers of the groom. Mr. John Gardner, Mr. William Mensching, Mr. James Estee, and Mr. Charles Wells.

The maid of honor was Miss Elsie Plant, sister of the groom, who was daintily gowned in cream silk over cream satin and carried a bouquet of la France roses. The bridesmaids, Miss Little Faunes, Miss Annie Hinsler, Miss Maggie Leontine and Miss Annie Burke, were gowned in silk satin over satin, the colors being, respectively, pink, green, yellow, and blue. Each carried chrysanthemums tied with ribbon to correspond.

The bride was prettily attired in white satin, trimmed with white chiffon. Her veil was crowned with lilles of the valley, and she carried a shower of Bride buds. A reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, 205 Twelfth street southwest, which was attended by the wedding party, relatives and intimate friends.

Another of last night's beautiful wed-dings occurred at Trinity Episcopal Church, where Miss Laura Vivian West, the daughter of Mr. J. T. West, became the wife of Mr. Alvin G. Bell. The church was filled with the friends of the young couple, and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Rich and P. Williams, rector. The organ solo was very beautiful and appropriate, and the sanctuary of the church was adorned in chrysanthemums and palms.

The bride, who was given away by her brother, Mr. Henry P. West, was handsomely attired in white satin and lace. Her veil was fastened with Bride buds, the same flowers forming her bouquet.

He made of honor, Miss Nellie De Vaughan, attended her, wearing white organdy, trimmed with silk ribbons of shaded pink. Her flowers were pink carnations. The bridesmaids, Miss Fannie Blackman and Miss Mary Loker, wore pink silk over pink silk, and carried large bunches of pink chrysanthemums. Little Miss Beulah Bass and Master John T. West acted as flower bearers to make Venus herself homely.
